Eastern Racing Season Opens at Bowie Today; Fast Fields Entered

Bowie has many followers of the ancient cult of sun worshipers and yesterday they were elated over the fact that old Sol was trying to make up for his bad behavior during the early spring. With the changed weather conditions even the horses felt good and responded to the requests of their trainers with that "pep" so much desired by them. This afternoon at 2:30 the buckle will blow for the opening of the 1916 season for racing and by that time the track will be fast, although a trifle dead. Followers of the thoroughbreds are assured of a successful meeting as there are plenty of high-class horses and experienced jockeys ready to answer the call to the post.

Special trains will leave Benning and Baltimore with horses from the old Washington track and Pimlico, the 500 stalls at Bowie not being sufficient to take care of all that will race at Maryland's newest and more popular track. Social trains will leave the White House Station at 1:15 and 1:40 direct to the rear of the grandstand, reaching there in plenty of time for the first race, which starts at 2:30. One of the special trains will leave immediately after the last race. There are seven events carded for each day. Following are today's entries:

BOWIE SELECTIONS.

By GEORGE B. MORRIS.
First—Dr. Nelson, Waukegan, My Girl.
Second—Between Us, Ina Kay, Tash.
Third—Brandywine, Hiker, Conterpart.
Fourth—Flittergold, Republican, Fair Helen.
Fifth—Gustling Brass, Marston, Batwa.
Sixth—Yodels, Tener, Mary Warren.
Seventh—Rose Juliet, Kneet, Harry Lauder.

(Business of mirth and glee.)

We've gotta give this Euterpe horse a "pep" in the sixth, but if you see it different suit yourself. You'll have to pick the last, "cause there's a couple of 'nags" entered that we never speak to.

Note—Lon's bought one of them new spring shirts, and all he needs to complete his stable is a pair of glasses, a few thoroughbreds and some coin. He's got the colors.

DOPEY DAN.

DOPEY DAN PICKS 'EM AT BOWIE

Dear Folks:

If you'd lend a listen to the merry prattle of the boulevard this April fool morn, every horse entered at Bowie today is going to scamper round with the coveted Grape Fruit. But should a few fall to scamper pray don't get disheartened, 'cause at this time o' year they're mighty uncertain, and as caution never did nobody no harm lets welcome King Horse and play caution to win. If you please, professor.

The first is for maiden "babies" and the "nut" what can guarantee the winner oughta travel on the Keith Circuit.

We rather fancy Water Lilly in the second.

The third should be between Brandywine, Counterpart, and Doc. Kegdall. Brandywine will have to answer to us.

The selections for the fourth and fifth sprints will be found in the following special at the end of the "follovin' write and staged by Lon himself.

Time—2:30 tonight. Place—The Ivy-clad flat. Characters—You and wife. (You enter from street figurin' on program, and wearin' fake look of dejection.

Wife—Oh, Cadwallerder, didn't Republican win?

You—Sure he win, babe! He win easy!

Wife—I love you, Cad! Didya get him?

You—Of course I get him, Sis, and Tom Hancock, too, the one Dopey Dan said had a chance in the fifth.

Robby Says Griff Has Strong Club

Brooklyn Manager Thinks the Local Team Is Stronger Than Last Season.

W. JOHNSON TO TWIRL

American League Speed Merchant to Try Luck Against Dodgers. Humphreys Is Sold.

"Griffith has a pretty good ball club in Washington this year—from what I saw of them today—yes, a pretty good club, not as good a hitting team as my bunch, but a better balanced aggregation than last year, as I remember them."

Thus spoke Manager Wilbert Robinson, of the Brooklyn Nationals, when interviewed by the writer last night.

"Harper, after he got started, showed us a lot of stuff—he looks like quite a pitcher," Robbie added.

Wilbert Robinson usually talks straight from the shoulder—that's the kind of a man he is, and in complimenting Griff the Nationals manager meant every word he said.

Those who witnessed yesterday's game must also have been impressed with the looks of the Brooklyn Nationals. This club is conceded by many experts as one of the best in the National League and picked by a number to win the 1916 flag.

Baseball writers traveling with the Dodgers pay big Ed Pfeffer, who pitched the first five innings yesterday, a high compliment. The majority of them are of the opinion that Pfeffer will easily win as many games as Grover Alexander, the Phillies star.

Although the Brooklynians have enjoyed much warmer weather in Daytona, Fla., than was the Nationals' portion in Charlottesville, the Dodgers, as a whole, did not look to be in any physical condition than the Griffins.

Charley Humphreys, the little southpaw, who last year pitched in the Virginia League and who created a good impression during the Charlottesville training camp season just closed, was sold yesterday to Billy Smith's Richmond club of the International League. The deal has not been definitely closed and will not be until waivers on Humphreys have been obtained.

Smith was here yesterday and watched the ball game between the Nationals and Brooklyn.

Walter Johnson is slated to pitch five innings against Brooklyn in the final contest of the series here this afternoon. Jack Bentley will finish the game.

Larry Cheney, the former Chicago Cub star, will attempt to humble the Nationals with his spitball, and it is claimed that Cheney, who has pitched a good one, "Dusty" Mails, a southpaw, will divide the box honors with Cheney.

Those fans who have been "riding" Ray Morgan the past winter and demanding that Griff get a new second baseman, had little to say yesterday when Morgan, who pitched the last single in the fifth, the ball game was won. Morgan also helped pull off a couple of nifty double plays and thus far has justified the Old Fox in granting him "more chance."

When in condition there is no more dangerous hitter in a pinch on any club than Morgan, and Ray will keep himself in shape this season, you can just put down a little bet to that effect.

Griffith's Yannigans, in charge of Nick Altrock, will invade Richmond today playing Billy Smith's International Leaguers two games, today and Monday.

Doc Ayers, Joe Boehling and Charley Humphreys will do the pitching. Rippe Williams is slated to hold down first base, and Ed Gharitty will be found behind the bat.

Thomas S. Rice, former baseball writer of the Capital, but now on the staff of the Brooklyn Eagle, is here with the Dodgers. Mr. Rice is of the opinion that the Nationals race this season will be close and exciting with the Dodgers standing just as good a chance to win as the Griffins.

Because the hitting was light on both sides, yesterday's game hardly served to impress any of the fans who watched the combat with a true line of dope on the relative strength of the teams. Judge and Rondeau, both capable hitters for the Griffins, failed to connect safely. It was Barber and Ray Morgan who upset the dope.

Today's game may throw a vastly different aspect on both parties concerned.

In the seventh inning yesterday, Bert Gallia, who had pitched the first five innings, was hit by a line drive from Rube Marquard's delivery only to be caught fast-footed a minute later, when Marquard shot the ball to Daubert at first base.

Marquard, according to rulings by American League umpires, would have been charged with a balk, but Bill Klem, a National League umpire who had the power to pass judgment, could see nothing wrong and therefore Gallia was declared out.

There are many who witnessed yesterday's game who believed that Joe Judge should not have intercepted Morgan's relay from Barber in the seventh inning when for a dose, scoring Wheat with the only run credited the Dodgers.

Morgan's aim was true and unless the ground proved to be extremely soft Wheat would have been thrown out by at least a step.

In cutting off the peg Judge may have figured that he could turn back Cutchaw at second, but he pulled a "bone" out, for there was no chance in the world of so doing. Judge should have let the ball come straight to Henry at the plate.

CUBS EAT TOO MUCH STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

New Orleans, La., March 31.—Strawberry shortcake was today blamed by Manager Tinker of the Cubs, for the many defeats handed the team. Tinker says the chef at the training camp told him that Cubs were eating double orders of the pastry.

"Next year it will be taboored," said Tinker.

To Enter National Regatta.

Springfield, Mass., March 31.—Springfield is planning to send a senior eight-oared crew to Duluth, Minn., August 12 and 13 to take part in the national regatta.

Dodgers Go Down To 2 to 1 Defeat

RICHMOND GETS HIM.
